PORTLAND

Portland, metropolis of Oregon, is supreme in a trade territory embracing 254,388 square miles. It lies just above the confluence of the Willamette and Columbia Rivers, the latter being the second largest commercial river in the United States, a position made doubly important through the continuous improvement of these great commercial waterways by the United States Government and the Port of Portland.

Portland covers an area of 66.36 square miles, and the population of the city is steadily increasing. It is called "The Rose City" in appreciation of the fact that its people pay special attention to the beautification of their homes, and especially to the planting of rose gardens and hedges.

Portland is unique in its efforts to develop the country throughout the state, and this policy has reacted very advantageously indeed on the trade of this city. Geographical contours give a water-level route from far in the interior. Railway lines operating on this grade pour their traffic into this city most economically as a consequence. The splendid fresh-water harbor is the only one on our Pacific Coast, and there is a 40-foot channel to the sea at mean low tide. The largest cargo of lumber ever floated, exceeding six million feet, was dispatched from Portland 120 miles down the Willamette and Columbia Rivers in the latter part of 1919.

There is no bar of sand at the entrance to the Columbia River. Vessels of any draft enter the river on their own power.

Portland is the chief lumber manufacturing city of the world. More than one-fifth of the standing commercial timber of the United States is within the confines of the State of Oregon—403,212,109,000 feet. The by-product of lumber is the manufacturing of furniture, this city having the largest furniture manufacturing plant in the United States, excepting Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Portland is the chief wheat exporting port of the Pacific Northwest, handling the bulk of the great crop produced in the Inland Empire (Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Idaho).

Portland has 772.39 miles of improved streets, of which 389.34 miles are hard surfaced, 130.30 miles macadam and gravel and 269.66 miles grading. In rank Portland has more miles of hard surfaced streets than any other city of its size in the United States, and more than any other city on the entire Pacific Coast.

Completed sewers show a total of 577 miles.

The assessed valuation of taxable property in Portland at the end of 1919 was $305,200,640. The tax rate for 1919 is 30.8 mills.

History.

When William Overton, in November, 1843, landed his Indian canoe on the river's western bank and examined the townsite of Portland, now spreading for miles along both shores, his imagination probably did not suggest to him its present magnitude. A solid mass of forest and underbrush skirted on the one side by the Willamette River and on the other by massive hills, was all that met his view. With William Overton was A. L. Lovejoy, having come from the Hudson Bay Company's post at Vancouver, Washington, and decided this was the best location for a townsite. Mr. Overton disposed of his property to F. W. Pettygrove, and the latter and Mr. Lovejoy had the site surveyed and the boundaries established during the Summer of 1844. They recognized the advantages of the location and reasoned that some day it must not only become a metropolis of a vast region, but also be one of the chief seaports of the Pacific Coast.

The first house, made of logs, was built in the Winter of 1844. F. W. Pettygrove was a native of Maine and A. L. Lovejoy of Massachusetts. The former wanted to name the new town Portland and the latter favored Boston. It was decided by the toss of a coin, "Heads it is Portland," "Tails it is Boston," Pettygrove winning twice out of three.

Portland was incorporated in 1851. The first city election, held April 7, 1851, showed a total vote cast of 140. In 1860 the population was 2,874. The population has more than doubled each decade.

If these founders of Portland could now return for one brief moment, the scene which would meet their eyes, would without doubt surpass their most sanguine anticipations. They might easily recognize the beautiful snow capped mountains and nature's many artistic environment of their Pioneer Home, but this is all that would appear familiar to them. They would find a cosmopolitan city, large blocks of commercial buildings, massive, and at the same time models of architectural beauty, while the residences, churches, and school houses are not surpassed by those of equally large cities of the East.

Shipbuilding.

Some of the largest steel and wooden shipbuilding yards of the Pacific Coast are located in Portland. In this city is centered the shipbuilding industry of the state, where steel and wooden vessels are turned out second in capacity on the Pacific Coast. More wooden ships are being built on the Columbia and Willamette Rivers than in any other section of the United States. That Portland is the ideal and logical place for the building of vessels of the wooden auxiliary type, has caused shipbuilders of acknowledged responsibility and fame to choose Portland for their location. The proximity of the vast timbered regions that produce large timbers for the construction of such vessels has made Portland the leading wooden shipbuilding center of the West.

One-fifth of the standing timber of the United States lies within the confines of the State of Oregon; and that this timber is best suited for the building of wooden ships is responsible for many of the wooden shipbuilding yards locating in this city.

The wonderful superiority of Douglas fir for shipbuilding purposes has recently come to be fully appreciated, and in no other territory can this material for this particular industry be secured to better advantage than in Portland.

The Columbia River is the home of the first wooden auxiliary motor schooner built in America, and pioneered the way for other vessels of like character to be built in the yards along the Willamette and Columbia Rivers.

The city has five steel shipyards and eight wood shipyards that rank among the largest in the United States.

Railroads.

Portland is rapidly forging to the front as the railroad center of the Pacific Northwest and her growth in this respect, within the past few years, has been almost phenomenal. The Fall of 1906, when the Spokane, Portland & Seattle (the North Bank Road, affiliated with the Hill system) was built down the north bank of the picturesque Columbia River at a cost of $53,000,000.00, marked the opening of a new era in railroad development for Portland, since which time millions of dollars have been expended annually within the state in railway improvement and extension. The completion of this line opened up a vast new territory to Portland. Then came the extension of the O. W. R. & N. (Harriman system) and the building of the Oregon Trunk (Hill system) from the Columbia River up the Deschutes Canyon to Bend, Crook County, 156 miles, into the heart of Central Oregon, which afforded that vast region, an empire within itself, its first "iron trail" communication with the outside world and an outlet for its products to the markets. The O. W. R. & N. has constructed a new line from Vale, in Malheur County, to Harriman in the eastern part of Harney County, now in operation, and construction work is proceeding southwest to Harney Lake. The Southern Pacific Company is also building an extension in Western Oregon from Natron, in Lane County, to Klamath Falls, Klamath County, in South Central Oregon, which will not only provide a shorter route between San Francisco and Portland, but also a more direct outlet for the products of that interior region to the Portland markets. The Willamette Pacific Branch of the Southern Pacific, has just completed a railroad from Eugene, in Lane County, to Marshfield, Coos County, in the Southwestern part of the State, which will afford that immensely rich and productive region its first railroad communication with the outside world. All of this added greatly to the importance of Portland's trade territory. Building of feeder lines, double-tracking and electrifying the present systems is going on continuously in the territory contiguous to Portland and numerous electric interurban lines stretch out in all directions from the city throughout the great and famous Willamette Valley, noted for its almost unlimited variety of products and never-failing crops. Most notable among these latter are the Oregon Electric (Hill system) with a total mileage of 154 miles; the United Railways operates from Portland to Linnton and Wilkesboro, in Washington County, a distance of 28 miles, and the electric loop of the Southern Pacific, which has a network of electric lines which, when completed, will aggregate 354 miles in extent throughout the Willamette Valley. Lines now in operation have a mileage of 109 miles. Two main depots give excellent passenger accommodations and freight terminals and warehouse facilities here are constantly being enlarged to meet requirements of ever-increasing traffic. The great trans-continental railway systems operating into Portland at present include the Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Burlington, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Water Transportation.

Portland's commerce reaches every prominent port. Steamship lines ply from this city to the Orient, to Pacific Coast ports and to Atlantic Coast via the Panama Canal. The Panama Canal affords much closer connection with Atlantic ports, and is having important bearing on Portland's progress. Tramp steamers and sailing vessels carry lumber and wheat from Portland to world-wide markets, and the great foreign shipping houses have healthy branches here. The harbor is in the heart of the city, and vessels dock close to wholesale and warehouses.

Regular service is established to and from Portland by the following transportation companies:

Off Shore Line—The Harrison Direct Lines: Pacific Steamship Co.; Williams, Diamond & Co.; Societe Generale de Transports Maritimes a Vapeur; Norway-Pacific Line—all operating to and from European, Oriental, West Indian and South American points.

Coastwise—Admiral Line, American Hawaiian Steamship Co., Boston & Pacific Steamship Co., Atlantic & Pacific Line (W. R. Grace & Co.), all operating to Atlantic and Gulf points.

Coastwise (not through canal)—Admiral Line; Chas. R. Nelson Co.; San Francisco & Portland Steamship Co.; McCormick Steamship Line; Parr, McCormick Steamship Line, and Swayne & Hoyt, all operating between Portland and

San Francisco; the Portland & Coos Bay Steamship Co., and the Nehalem & South Coast Transportation Co.

River—The Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Co., Oregon City Transportation Co., the Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation Co., Willamette Navigation Co., Vancouver Transportation Co., Lewis River Navigation Co., Columbia Navigation Co., Peoples' Transportation Co., American Transportation Co., Clatskanie Transportation Co., Diamond Line, Kellogg Transportation Co., Pacific Navigation Co., Western Transportation Co., and the Shaver Transportation Co. A mosquito fleet of independent gasoline schooners and launches ply every small tributary.

City and Interurban Transportation.

Excellent street car service is afforded by the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, in fact, in proportion to its population, Portland is served by a larger number of street cars during the rush hours of the day, than any other city in the United States. The street car mileage of this Company total 215.49 miles within the six cent fare zone, exceeded only by two other cities in the country, population considered. Only cars of the most modern type are used, embodying the latest improvements for safety and comfort of the passengers.

Frequent interurban electric trains connect Portland and the surrounding district for a radius of from 25 to 125 miles. Chief among them are: Portland Railway, Light & Power Co., North, East and South to Oregon City, Vancouver, Wash., Estacada, Fairview, Troutdale, Gresham and Bull Run.

Willamette Valley Southern Railway—extending 32 miles into a rich farming district of the Willamette Valley, including the towns of Mollalla and Mt. Angel.

Oregon Electric Railway—West and South into Tualatin Valley and Willamette Valley, the main line running from Portland to Eugene, 125 miles, with branches to Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Woodburn and Corvallis.

Southern Pacific Electric—(Portland, Eugene & Eastern) West and South to Hillsboro, Forest Grove, McMinnville, Whiteson, Newberg and Oswego.

United Railways Company—North and West to West Portland (Linnton) and Wilkesboro.

The combined city and interurban mileage places Portland as the fifth city in the United States in regard to electrical transportation, and has been and will be a very important factor in the development of Portland's vast trade territory.

Water, Electricity and Gas.

Portland's pioneers were far-sighted and made reservations of Bull Run River, a splendid mountain stream, for the perpetual domestic water supply of the city. A municipal gravity system has been built that brings the water from its source, the Bull Run River, which is fed by melting mountain snows, through conduits for a distance of 24 miles. There is ample supply for all purposes and the water is remarkably soft and pure. Over 67 million gallons of water are pumped through two huge pipe lines to the city every 24 hours.

The chief supply and distribution of electricity for light and power purposes is made by the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, which operate five water power plants and five steam plants with a total capacity of 90,000 H. P. The power furnished by this Company is all generated within 40 miles of Portland, the hydraulic plants being located on the Willamette River, Clackamas River and Bull Run River, this arrangement, in connection with the five steam plants insuring reliable service to all parts of the Company's system. Some parts of the city are also supplied by the Northwestern Electric Company, with a hydraulic generating plant at White Salmon, Washington, and a steam plant in this city. These two systems combined have a generating capacity in excess of the present demand of approximately 65,000 H. P., insuring an ample power supply for Portland to meet future demands. There are 50,000 consumers of electricity within the territory served by these light and power companies, a greater portion, according to the population, than is found in any Eastern city.

Gas for lighting, heating and power purposes is adequately supplied to all parts of the city by the Portland Gas & Coke Co., one of the largest institutions of its character on the Pacific Coast.

Streets and Parks.

Portland is continuously improving its streets, and in this respect stands among the most modern cities of the country.

All of the city is yet a park, in that great fir trees, oaks and cedars grow on the hills and close down to the border of the city limits. The streets are lined with shade trees and every home has its lawn and rose hedges.

Boulevards run along each side of the river, both above and below the business district, and the Council Crest Drive is one of the most noted in the world, because of the vast panorama of mountain, hill, valley and city that unfolds to the view of the spectator.

Terwilliger Boulevard, following the contour of the hills on the west side of the river, is a connecting link of an extensive chain of scenic roads that lead from the city into the beautiful verdure garbed valleys dotted with orchards and farm homes.

Portland's Parks exceed both in size and number those of other cities of its size and are of such scenic beauty that they challenge comparison.

Washington Park is situated on the edge of the western hills, a most slightly location, where some of the most magnificent views of the city and mountain peaks are to be obtained from an eminence in this park. Here are to be found beautiful flowers, both wild and cultivated. Restful shades and drives, rustic bridges and the historic statuary carved by the famous sculptors of America, the most noted being "Sacajawea" and the "Coming of the White Man." "Sacajawea," the guide of Lewis and Clarke, and the "Coming of the White Man," showing the Indian welcoming the new comer to the domain of the Red Men.

Another one of the interesting parks of the city is Peninsula Park, where are to be found beautiful sunken gardens, said to be the largest rose park in the United States, and accessible by street cars from the center of the city.

Macleay Park is situated in the Willamette Heights district, and was donated by an early pioneer with the request that its natural ruggedness be maintained in its present state.

Columbia River Highway.

The Columbia River Highway, just hard surfaced from Portland to the Hood River County line, gives the tourist access to the land of Thanatopsis.

From Portland this wonderful highway reaches West to the Pacific and East to Central Oregon. It is America's newest and greatest pathway for the recreationist. Its scenic beauties are not only a combination of the Alps, the Rhine and Southern Italy with the wild grandeur of the American Rockies, but it is a remarkable engineering accomplishment.

From Portland to the sea, the highway gives glimpses of the diked bottom lands which resemble the wonderful country behind the sea wall of Holland; it winds in and out among the low hills bordering the Columbia River, giving vantage for views of splendor in color and form, while constantly the vista of river shore and water commerce changes. Then it carries the traveler through Astoria, the quaint port city, and on to the sea.

Going East from Portland this wonder road pierces the heretofore inaccessible gorge of the Columbia, and in these upper stretches of the highway are found 60 miles of cliffs and falling waters, matchless colors of shore and sky. Hanging on cliffs in many places, hundreds of feet above the river in others, its concrete and steel bridges spanning turbulent streams which sprawl many feet underneath, supported by quaint walls of dry masonry for miles of its length, the highway at Crown Point is 700 feet above the river and gives a view of 35 miles in either direction.

Until this roadway was built the Columbia River gorge has never been passable except on board a railroad train, a single track having been constructed along the bank of the river. From car windows fleeting glimpses of its marvelous scenic attractions were obtained. The gorge was the home of Indian tribes in the early days, a fastness where they were safe from enemies. It was the scene of the fabled Bridge of the Gods, and around its scenic grandeur many Indian fables were drawn.

From Crown Point the Highway spirals downward on a 5 per cent grade, in triple figure 8, and enters the district which has given it the title, "The Road of the Falling Waters." In 10 miles' travel 11 spell-binding water falls are passed, the highest being Multnomah Falls, second highest in the United States. Latourell Falls, Shepherds Dell, Bridal Veil, Coopey Falls, Dalton Falls, Mist Falls, Wankeena Falls, Benson Park and Multnomah Falls, Oneonta Gorge, where a subterranean stream sends air blasts along the rocks, Horsetail Falls, Cathedral Point, St. Peter's Dome, pass in quick succession and the traveler is at Bonneville, where he can inspect the greatest fish hatchery in the world.

Then on through the tunnel at Mitchell's Point to the sunken forests of the Columbia, where giant trees are seen beneath the waters; to the petrified forests at Tanner's Creek with 200-foot trees; to the abutments of the Bridge of the Gods, passing numerous fish wheels, and into the Hood River Valley. From there the tourist finds the call of Mt. Hood and its tremendous glaciers can be responded to with convenience over splendid roads.

A National Park now parallels the Columbia River Highway between Portland and Hood River, which forever retains this virgin masterpiece of nature's handiwork to the uses of the people.

The Rose Festival.

The Rose Festival is an annual event held in the second week of June of each year, as a token of esteem to the beautiful flower that blooms in such perfection and multitude here. The soil, climate, sunshine, gentle rain and cool nights, all work in producing the billions of delicately colored blossoms that has led other coast towns to engage in rose culture for the beautification of their streets and gardens, but in no other city does the rose bloom to such a state of perfection and beauty as it does here.

Clubs and Commercial Organizations.

Club life is well developed here. In addition to various social organizations there are strong commercial bodies. The Portland Chamber of Commerce, being one of the largest in the country; the East Side Business Men's Club, Greater Portland Association, the Portland Ad Club, Civic League, City Club, Progressive Business Men, Press Club, Realty Board, Rose Festival Association, Trails Club, Rose Society, Royal Rosarians and Rotary Club—that deal with public questions and do valuable publicity work. All have large memberships; social, educational, literary and musical clubs, and the city is widely known for its Symphony Orchestra. Notable among clubs owning their own homes are the Arlington Club, the Portland Chamber of Commerce, University Club, Elks Club, Multnomah Club, Oregon Yacht Club, the Hunt Club, Irvington Tennis Club, Portland Auto Club, Portland Heights Club, Concordia Club, Waverley Country Club, Tualatin Country Club, Portland Rowing Club. The holdings of these clubs would aggregate more than two millions of dollars.

Livestock Markets.

The rapid and substantial growth of the Portland Union Stock Yards, since their opening in 1909, has conclusively demonstrated that Portland is the one great livestock center on the Pacific Coast. In fact, it is the only competitive market west of Denver, and is growing in importance each year.

The business of buying and selling stock is handled by some dozen commission firms, who are the agents of the shipper and sell to the highest bidder. There are about 30 regular buyers at the Portland Stock Yards, which insures a shipper getting at all times the full value of his stock.

The livestock industry of Oregon has come into its own and is now on a substantial basis, as evidenced by the fact that it represents one-fourth of the total agricultural resources of the state.

Manufactures.

The state is rapidly forging to the front as a manufacturing center and is already the chief manufacturing city in the Pacific Northwest. There are 900 manufacturing establishments here representing an investment of $86,000,000. There are 43,500 factory employes, including shipyard workers, officials and office men, whose wages amount to $50,000,000 per annum. The value of the product last year was $75,000,000, exclusive of the ship industry. The principal lines of manufacturing are lumber and its by-products, flour, furniture, woollens, harness and saddlery, machinery, fruit canning and meat packing.

Financial Center.

PORTLAND has been the business center of the Oregon country since the earliest days, when the state name included the whole Pacific Northwest. This city has been the Wall Street for this corner of the United States and her banks are the largest and most substantial in the territory. They have a wide reputation for strength and conservative methods. Portland has 26 banks, eight of which are National institutions. In 1919 the bank citarings amounted to $1,490,607,287.21, and the deposits December 31, 1919, aggregated $166,882,409.19.

Libraries.

PORTLAND is the seat of the magnificent new Multnomah County library. This, with five tastefully designed and substantial branch buildings and thirteen sub-branches, give easy access to its privileges from every portion of the city, its circulating rural libraries throughout the entire county and affiliations with suburban communities make this institution unique among American libraries. A feature of the new building is a series of commodious halls, available without charge for meetings of a civic or development nature. More than fifty organizations regularly avail themselves of this opportunity. The circulation in 1919 was nearly 2,000,000 volumes.

Schools and Education.

PORTLAND has an excellent public school system. There are 68 school buildings in the city under the control of the School Board. There are 1,250 teachers and supervisors employed, and 40,131 pupils enrolled, segregated as follows: Elementary schools, 28,995 pupils; high schools, 6,052 pupils; trade schools, 1,423 pupils; night schools, 3,661 pupils. There are numerous private schools of high class and efficiency as well as numerous trade and technical institutions.

The University of Oregon maintains its Medical Department in this city, which ranks as a first-class institution in the teaching of medical science. The largest Dental College on the Pacific Coast, teaching dentistry and pharmacy, is located here, besides private medical institutions and law schools.

A Public Art Institution fosters the fine arts, and the whole city has an air of culture and refinement.

Reed College is an institution offering courses of the highest order in the arts and sciences. It has a large endowment fund and is fast forging to the front as a school of National prestige.

Music conservatories and Voice Culture schools rank among the highest in the country.

Building Operations.

The past few years have been busy ones in building new structures in Portland, and the advance in apartment houses and hotels has been especially marked. Heavy investments have been made in office buildings of the most modern type. Unusual taste is manifested in even the smaller dwellings found in the suburbs, while each year sees many homes of commanding architecture added to the exclusive districts.

Newspapers.

Four daily newspapers are published in Portland, the Oregonian, Oregon Journal, Evening Telegram and Portland News, with an additional 80 semi-weekly, weekly and monthly publications.

Climate.

Portland has an equable climate. The summers are cool and comfortable, the winters mild and rainy. For a period covering the last thirty years the United States Weather Bureau gives the average annual rainfall as 45 inches, the average yearly temperature was 52.4 degrees. There are no destructive storms, wind or electric.

Churches.

PORTLAND has 213 churches, with church buildings valued at approximately $3,150,000. The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. have large memberships and splendid buildings of their own. The B'nai B'rith have also a building of their own.

Information.

The State of Oregon maintains an exhibit of Oregon products, agricultural, mineral, and manufactured, on the ground floor of the Oregon building, with an Information Bureau for home seekers.

The Portland Chamber of Commerce maintains several bureaus where the home seeker, investor or tourist may secure information pertaining to any particular subject in which he may be interested.

The Oregon Development Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce is of special interest to the home seeker. Information as to lands and agriculture, and advice is furnished free of charge. The offices are maintained in the Oregon building at Fifth and Oak streets.

Population 320,656

Since we are entering on a new decade, it is fitting a few remarks be made and a few figures cited regarding the trend of the population of Portland as disclosed by the records of the City Directory Office, kept for over twenty-five years. All districts of the city have shown a remarkable increase the past ten years, and especially since 1918. Sections that in 1910 were farms and brush tracts have been built up almost solid with residences. Ten years ago in the territory bounded by East 28th, East 55th, East Stark and Sandy Blvd., which includes Laurelhurst, we took the names of 1119 people. Within the same limits this year we took 3506 names. Even old settled communities outside the apartment house districts show the same tendency, only in less marked degree. One such is the Sunnyside district between Hawthorne Av. and East Stark, East 30th and East 45th, which returned 2431 names in 1910 and 3035 names ten years later. On the West Side the erection of so many large apartment houses in the last decade has caused that section to show great increases. Thus the twelve blocks between Broadway and 12th, Mill and Hall, gave 269 names in 1900, 463 in 1910, and 985 in 1920. These examples are indicative of the growth and spread of population in almost every section of the city. This is offset to some degree by the extension of business and industry into hitherto residential districts. This is especially true of the north part of the West Side, extending back from the river a distance of from one-quarter of a mile to a mile.

In canvassing for names for the directory not only Portland but all its environs as well are covered, including Milwaukie, Errol Heights, Parkrose, Multnomah, etc. The actual number of individual names listed in this year's issue of the Portland City Directory is 142,514. This number is exclusive of all names of corporations, partnerships, etc. Of this number approximately 4655 dwell outside the city boundaries but within the limits of Greater Portland.

In arriving at an estimate of the population we have found after years of experience that $2\frac{3}{4}$ is a fair multiple to account for names of wives and children under eighteen years of age not counted. Using such a multiple gives a total population for Portland and environs at the beginning of 1920 of 320,656.

THE PUBLISHERS.

POLK'S

Street Avenue and Addition Guide

1920

EXPLANATION

Names of streets and avenues (except the numerical streets) are in alphabetical order.

Numerical streets, such as 1st, 2d, etc., are at the end of alphabetical list, in numerical order. East 1st, East 2d, etc., follow "East" in alphabetical list in numerical order.

The subjoined names of intersecting streets, with the numbers that occur at each intersection, follow in the order in which they cross. If, for instance, you wish to find 411 Alder street, by reference to this Guide you will see that Alder intersects Tenth at 395, and Eleventh at 415. The place you seek is between those streets.

Where even numbers appear it shows that the street enters only on the even side and does not cross. Two numbers are inserted where there is a break in the line—streets entering each way not being opposite—thus making odd and even numbers out of the usual order.

By city ordinance there is a number for every 25 feet front. This makes 20 numbers to an ordinary block—2 numbers on each side being allowed for the street.

The numbers on the west and north sides of the streets are odd, and on the opposite sides are even. The initial points are at Ankeny street, the Couch line, and Washington street. The east and west initial points are at the Willamette river and Interstate avenue. The numbers given are on the northwest corner of the streets running north and south, south of the Ankeny line, and on the southwest corner north of the Ankeny line; on the southeast corner of the streets running east and west, west of the river, and on the northwest corner east of the river.

The distinction as to numbers north of Ankeny line is made by adding the word "North."

To aid in locating streets we have divided the city as follows, indicating location by abbreviations in parenthesis after each street name:

WEST SIDE—(N. W.) All north of Ankeny. (W.) Between Ankeny and Lincoln. (S. W.) South of Lincoln.

EAST SIDE—(N.) All north of Fremont. (N. E.) From Fremont to E. Ankeny. (E.) Between E. Ankeny and E. Lincoln. (S. E.) From E. Lincoln south.

SOUTH EAST—For description of streets with the suffix SE see page 30, E. 42d, etc.

CHURCHES

Note—The usual time of Sunday services is 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. In summer the evening service begins at 7:45. The usual Sunday school hour is 12:15 p. m. and the Young People's meetings one hour before the evening service of the church. The midweek prayer meeting is generally on Thursday evening.

Because of this general uniformity in the hours of service in all the churches of Portland, the detailed statement in connection with each church is omitted.

"RADIO"
Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your rooms through
one register;
no pipes. Fills
the house with warm, MOIST,
healthful air
and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
box takes 24-
inch wood; also burns coal.
Saves a third in fuel. Write or phone for information.

"RADIO"
Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your
rooms through
one register;
no pipes. Fills
the house with
warm, MOIST,
healthful air
and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
box takes 24-
inch wood; also
burns coal.
Saves a third
in fuel. Write

"RADIO"
Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your
rooms through
one register;
no pipes. Fills
the house with
warm, MOIST,
healthful air
and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
box takes 24-
inch wood; also
burns coal.
Saves a third

"RADIO"
Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your
rooms through
one register;
no pipes. Fills
the house with
warm, MOIST,
healthful air
and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
box takes 24-
inch wood; also
burns coal.
Saves a third
in fuel. Write or phone for information.

"RADIO"
 Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your
 rooms through
 one register;
 no pipes. Fills
 the house with
 warm, MOIST,
 healthful air
 and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
 box takes 24-
 inch wood; also
 burns coal.
 Saves a third
 in fuel. Write or phone for

"RADIO"
Pipeless Furnace

Heats all your
rooms through
one register;
no pipes. Fills
the house with
warm, MOIST,
healthful air
and insures constant circulation. Long fire-
box takes 24-
inch wood; also
burns coal.
Saves a third
in fuel. Write
